

BARB temple

We made a temple inspired by “BARB”
— the backward-facing hook found on fishhooks and arrowheads.

Small barbs are added near the joint of the metal core to prevent the long acetate temple tip from slipping off. The temple can be made slimmer because the temple tip is inserted without screws. In the case of full-metal frames, the temple can be colored together with the front.

INTER EYES CO., LTD.

EURO VISION CO., LTD.

